 2. The quarterly performance of the Company depends mainly on the customer's selling area. If it's the United States, the sale season will start earlier than in Asian countries areas. Hence, the performance in each quarter will mainly depend on the proportion of orders from customers in each area. Normally, the third quarter is the company's lowest season.
 3. For the effect of the electricity price increase, the OEM business that does not use large machines which consume a high level of electricity is therefore rarely affected. But, in the Parts business, its large machines such as the plastic injection machine or the stamping machine will be affected by the increase in electricity bills. Still, with the Solar Rooftop project which can produce electricity at approximately 3.4 megawatts, the Company will not get a significant impact from the price increase but will be able to get a faster payback for the project.
